ABOUT BATHINDA

Bathinda is a city located in the Malwa region of state of Punjab, India. Bathinda is a popular tourist destination, with many attractions for visitors. The city has several ancient temples and historical monuments, including the Quila Mubarak, a fort built in the 18th century, and the Bahia Fort, which dates back to the 19th century. The city is also home to the Bathinda Lake, a popular spot for boating and picnicking, two modern thermal powerplants, a fertilizer plant, a large oil refinery, a Zoo.

Bathinda History

The district derives its name from the district headquarters town of Bathinda, which is of great antiquity. According to Khalifa Muhammad Hassan, author of History of Patiala, its ancient name was Bikramgarh. According to Raverty, Bathinda was known as Tabarhindh (Labb-ut-Twarikh). According to Ibn Batutait was known as Batrind. The earliest mention of Tabarhindh occurs in the "Jami-ul-Hakayat" written about 607 Hijri or 1211 AD. According to "Ainai-BararBans" Bathinda was built by Bhati Rao, son of Bal Band, who became ruler of Punjab in 336 Bikrami Sambat. He also founded Bhatner. It was also called Whatinda and Bitunda which finally become known as Bhatinda. But its name was changed to Bathinda on the authority of Survey of India to conform to the phonetical expression as locally pronounced. In recent times the town was conquered by Maharaja Ala Singh (near about 1754 AD) and since then it followed the history of erstwhile princely state of Patiala. With the dawn of independence and merger of Patiala and East Punjab States into a division styled as PEPSU, Bathinda became full-fledged district which state has combined even after the merger of PEPSU with erstwhile Punjab State in 1956.
